THAT'S NEWES TO ME!

Little-Known Facts to Amaze Your Friends

Hitching a Ride South

GEOLOGICAL SAMPLING and fossil data gave scientists the first clues, in the early 1920s, that something was up. Since then, of course, satellite research has explained the mystery: Apparently, on the great jigsaw puzzle called Planet Earth, our little island occupies a separate tectonic plate from the continental United States. According to cryptogeologist Roberta Sturz, of the Tuco Institute, the Vineyard was once situated off the coast of Greenland and is on an eons-long journey southward. "Eventually Martha's Vineyard's closest neighbor will be Key West," she says. But don't throw away that parka quite yet. At our current cruising speed, we won't be enjoying homegrown Key Lime Pie for another 40 million years.

Pilgrims in Black & White

MARTHA'S VINEYARD'S first skunks were brought in 1545 by explorer Bartholomew Gosnold, who also gave the Island its name. For brief time in history, skunks were kept aboard English seafaring vessels because they were thought to displace their more dangerous Plague-bearing ship-mates, the rats. When English settlers first arrived, native Americans took one whiff and named them Sumnappeepoe, a Wampanoag term meaning "smelly ones."

Shooting the Breeze

IT WAS THE CUSTOM, in colonial Edgartown, when coming to dinner at someone's house, for the guest to bring a gift of what was called "a box of breezes." This was nothing more than a handful of stories - probably local gossip - that the host and other guests had not heard. Around the dinner table, guests would "swap breezes" or (as the phrase was known when it became widespread) "trade winds." Gradually this term was appropriated for nautical use and lost its original meaning.

Stone-Eating Trees

TREES are not the hot commodity they used to be. Once indispensable for use in the hearth and for building homes and ships, wood was in such demand that, up to the 1920s...

...Martha's Vineyard was nearly devoid of oaks, maples and beeches. Bearing almost no resemblance to today's lushly forested Island, the Vineyard of old was a place of rolling pastures separated by the occasional meandering stone wall. Take a walk through one of the many wildlife preserves and you'll still find walls trailing nonsensically between trees. In well-documented cases, local trees have been known to swallow large rocks, gradually engulfing them completely within their trunks and covering them over with bark.

IF I HAD A NICKEL... Telling Heads from Tails When You're Handed A Wooden Nickel

AT THE NEWES you get a wooden nickel for each short draught and two nickels for every tall draught purchased. Collect 500 and your name goes on our Declaration of Distinction and USE of our custom tankards. This Custom Tankard is displayed in the bar, ready for you to drink from whenever you come in!

Collect another 500 and your name goes on our Declaration of Superiority, as well as on a brass plaque on one of our bar stools. This is your bar stool, whenever you come in, for a full year. Maintain proprietorship by collecting 500 more nickels by year's end.

If all bar stools have names on them, your name goes on a waiting list. When a patron fails to turn in 500 nickels before his/her anniversary, the person at the top of the list gets the stool.
